United States* construed the honest services branch of the federal mail and wire fraud statutes to reach no more than cases involving bribery or kickbacks. The mail and wire fraud statutes, 18 U.S.C. 1341 and 1343, impose criminal penalties for the use of mail or interstate wire communications to deprive another of money or property through a scheme or artifice to defraud. In its 1987 McNally decision, the Court had held that while the fraud statutes reached schemes to deprive another of property rights, they did not cover the intangible right of the citizenry to good government. Congress responded almost immediately by enacting the honest services statute, 18 U.S.C. 1346, which declares that phrase scheme or artifice to defraud in the mail and wire statutes also encompasses depriving another of the intangible right of honest services. In its 2009 term, the Court was presented with three honest services cases--Skilling, Black and Weyhrauch. Each offered the Court a slightly different prerequisite for an honest services conviction for Weyhrauch, a public official,...
